Leading Community Demonstration Site Expression of Interest

Closing Date 1 November 2023

1. What is a Leading Community Demonstration Site?

The Leading Community Demonstration Site (LCDS) will deliver a new service model for Aboriginal families who may need support to resolve their housing needs, whilst addressing at least one other social issue nominated by the community.

The LCDS will run for 3 years, with the first being a setup year will be funded up to $250K and additional $150K each year for the following two years.

One of the reasons for delivering the LCDS is to gather more evidence about the benefit of co-designing Aboriginal services for Aboriginal families and community.

It will be Aboriginal led co-designed by the community, AHO and other Aboriginal services, Government and non-government organisation partners.

The Government agency will be identified based on who the community says is an important service partner.

Aboriginal cultural competence will be required from the NSW Government agency partner. For now, there will be one site which will be funding for three years.

2. Who is eligible to apply?

Any ACCO located in NSW is eligible to apply. Note the AHO definition of ACCO is an Aboriginal Community Controlled Organisation that is an incorporated Aboriginal organisation, initiated, based in and governed by, the local Aboriginal community to deliver holistic and culturally appropriate services to the Aboriginal community that controls it, local community board members must be listed.

3. How could my community get involved?

AHO invites Aboriginal communities to express their interest to host the site.

AHO expects Aboriginal Community Controlled Organisations (ACCO) would respond to the EOI, sharing why they would like to host the site, how their community could benefit, and their experience working in partnership to achieving positive outcomes for Aboriginal families.

LCDS aims to have a positive social impact that will achieve a better outcome/s for Aboriginal people, families and communities through the implementation of an Aboriginal led co-design approach with successful ACCO.

This approach will ensure that the initiative is delivered in a way that works for local Aboriginal communities, and local communities are able to have input into the pilot.

4. Who else is involved?

AHO has committed to work with the community, peak bodies and key government organisations to co-design a culturally appropriate service model for the pilot. The ACCO will choose who they would like as partners and stakeholders.

5. How will the EOI application be assessed?

A panel which will include a mix of Aboriginal Housing Office and an independent person will assess all EOI applications against a set criteria. It might take a couple of weeks for the proposals to be assessed. The AHO may ask follow up questions or request more information.

6. Could there be changes to the EOI evaluation process?

Yes. The AHO may, at its sole discretion, and at any stage of the application process do all or any of the following:

- Require additional information from a proponent
- Change the scope of the requirements of these Guidelines
- Vary, amend (including by replacement) or terminate the EOI process
- Re-open a proposal after the closing date provided it doesn't provide the applicant with an advantage over other applicants

AHO retains the discretion to increase or decrease funds as required based on the merits of the case. This might include opportunities for some of the unsuccessful proponents to have a smaller experience project with AHO. Again, this will be determined based on the merits of the case.

6. When will I know the outcome?

Successful EOIs will be announced by 01 December 2023.

7. Why is AHO wanting to do something now?

We want to showcase how an Aboriginal-led co-designed approach works better for Aboriginal people and community and will have better outcomes. AHO would like to collect evidence about this new way of working with Aboriginal people and communities.

We've looked at tenant surveys and heard what was said in listen & yarns about what communities and families say could be improved and how we could be clearer about our role in social housing.

The EOI is designed to determine a level of readiness for co-design and for a new service model.

8. Is this EOI targeted to specific locations?

This EOI is Statewide. Any community can express interest their local ACCO. It's intended that the service model developed through co-design for the site would service a local community. Depending on what the community suggests, this might be over a small or larger area.

9. Where can I go for further information/support?
